Re: Sandra Guzman v. NYP Holdings, Inc.
EEOC Charge No. 520-2010-00472

Dear Ms. Gutierrez:

I am legal counsel for NYP Holdings, Inc. (the "Post"), the publisher of the New York Post newspaper and former employer of Charging Party. I submit this statement of position in opposition to the charge of discrimination and retaliation¹ submitted by Charging Party Sandra Guzman (the "Charge"). In the future, please direct any inquiries concerning this matter to me.

GENERAL STATEMENT OF POSITION

Charging Party is a former associate editor of the Post who was hired for the purpose of helping the Post increase its readership in the New York Hispanic community by assisting with the creation of a unique monthly English-language newspaper section that would focus on matters of interest for that community. She was also charged with managing and editing this monthly newspaper section, called Tempo. First published in October 2003, the Post published and supported Tempo for six years until doing so no longer made any business sense. Unfortunately, the section could not sustain a profit, incurring financial losses, while the goal of increasing readership in the Hispanic community was not achieved; readership actually decreased during her employment.

Ultimately, Charging Party's employment ended when Tempo was discontinued because it cost more money to publish than it brought in through advertising dollars (resulting in financial ¹ Charging Party has filed this Charge against both News Corporation and the Post. To be clear, News Corporation, which is the corporate parent a number of layers removed from NYP Holdings, Inc., did not employ Charging Party, nor did it make any decisions regarding the terms and conditions of Charging Party's employment. Charging Party was employed by and paid by the Post exclusively, and the decision to terminate her employment was made exclusively by Post employees. For this reason, therefore, as well as for the other reasons set forth herein, the Charge should be dismissed as against News Corporation.
